Team,

Hurricane Helene has intensified to a Category 3 and is approaching Florida landfall tonight, with maximum sustained winds of 120 mph and severe storm surge expected. Currently located about 170 miles west-southwest of Tampa and moving north-northeast, the hurricane is already causing heavy rain across the state, leading to flash flood and tornado warnings. Tampa is experiencing the effects, and wind gusts have begun in Jacksonville. Coastal flooding has been reported along the entire coastline. Major power outages are anticipated, and tornado watches are also in effect.

Employees in Florida should stay vigilant, keep your families safe, and follow local updates. The Employee Emergency Portal is active with important information and updates. Please share this message with any colleagues who may not be aware of this resource.
